

Art Attack: Eight New Shows and Events in Denver

SUSAN FROYD | FEBRUARY 24, 2021 | 3:44PM

"Gas Shortage," 2018 (ongoing), a Google image of the 1973 gas shortage etched in the wall using the sgraffito technique, three windshield fluid relics containing the scrapings of the sgraffito, a working Milton driveway bell, hose and anchor. Courtesy of Devon Dikeou

Devon Dikeou, Mid-Career Smear

Dikeou Collection, 1615 California Street, Fifth Floor

Reopens Monday, March 1, by appointment

Devon Dikeou's high-rise gallery space awakes from a deep sleep to reopen Mid-Career Smear, a thirty-year survey curated by Cortney Lane Stell, first scheduled to open a year ago. The exhibition includes carefully staged, sophisticated installations, some of which resemble design-magazine spreads. Appointments will be available Wednesdays through Fridays; email info@dikeoucollection.org or call 303-623-3001 to set up a date and time to visit.